Mr. Detwiler also has a copy of these.—New Smyrna Breeze.

New style art mounts for photographs at Harris' Studio. Phone 91.

An exchange-truthfully remarks: "People kiss their dead whenever stop to kiss their living. They hover over caskets with hysterical sobs, but fail to throw the wealth of affection about those loved ones who are fighting the stern battles of life. How unheeding we permit the opportunities for carrying sunshine into the lives of those we love pass by. A word of cheer to a struggling soul in life is worth more than all the roses in christendom piled high on casket covers."

MARIE CORELI'S "WORMWOOD."

Chas. W. Chase's dramatic version of "Wormwood," or the Absinthe Drinkers of Paris, the master work of Marie Corelli, the English romancer, which will be produced at the Opera House on Tuesday evening, November 25, must rank as one of the most important productions of the season. The wonderful popularity of the book, the strength of the cast which is to enact the play, the promise of a splendid setting for the actors to play in and the general interest in the dramatization of a novel which has excited so much comment, all tend to make this an event. Manager Aiden Benedict has spared no expense in putting the drama on the stage and one of the best performances seen here in years is promised. Admission 50 and 75 cents. Reserved seats on sale at the Atwood Pharmacy.
